It is aggravating to get a senatorial boom one minute, and see it break the next.

When Mr. Quarles got 19 votes for United States Senator, he suddenly thought the appointed time had come; but it hadn't.

In the joint convention to-day of the Legislature, Senator Cameron received 97 votes, and Vilas, 27. Cameron goes to Washington immediately.

The Legislature has got around the senatorial snag, and probably from this out there will be lively work in closing up the business of the session.

General Risk, of this State, wants to be Commissioner of Agriculture. He would make a good one, and in more ways than one would be an improvement on Le Due.

The Cameron men wore the appearance late last night of having been kicked by about 56 stayers.—Madison Democrat.

But how did "fifty-six stayers" appear on Wednesday night when the Cameron men beat the field?

There are 10,033 applications on file in Washington for positions under the new administration, and 500 office-seekers were at the White House on Tuesday. It is worth more than $50,000 a year to contend with the office-seekers rabble of this country.

Ex-Congressman Hewitt gives $100 to help hunt up the rascals who forged the Morey letter. The quickest way to find the rascals is to enquire of the Democratic National Committee. They put up the job, and evidently know all about it.

Mr. Jonathan Bowman, who came very near being struck by senatorial lightning at Madison, is a resident of Columbia county. He was in the Assembly in 1862, a member of the Senate in 1863, '64, '65, and '66, and again in the Assembly in 1874. He was also a Presidential elector in 1864. He is a man of fair ability, but would hardly make a good United States Senator.

The man who is making interesting calculations for the Bookeller and Stationer shows that the Chicago people spent $54,000,000 last year for books, $8,500,000 for ladies' bonnets, $6,000,000 for jewelry, $400,000 for furniture, and $2,500,000 for confectionery. We spent $10,000,000 for paper and stationery, $40,000,000 for music, and only $4,000,000 for anthracite coal.—Inter Ocean.

But the largest item of expense, and the most important calculation, have been omitted. The man has forgotten to mention how many million dollars Chicago has spent in liquors.

The Chicago Inter Ocean very properly suggests that it would be but a trifling recognition of the eminent services of the late Senator Carpenter if some action was taken by the citizens of Chicago looking to a formal reception of the funeral party when it arrives in that city from Washington. Such an occasion would be a fitting time for the people of Chicago to testify their appreciation of his great abilities, and the loss which the nation has sustained in his death. The Inter Ocean concludes: "He has honored Chicago often by his presence; it would be appropriate that Chicago should honor his remains, and arrange to have representatives at the obsequies in Milwaukee."

The railway accidents for February, 1881, were greater in number than those of any one month for many years. There were 223 accidents all told, and in those 30 persons were killed and 182 injured. The total accidents for the year ending with January, were as follows:

Month	Accidents	Killed	Injured
February, 1881	22	3	25
March	21	11	43
April	17	9	30
May	16	2	10
June	15	6	27
July	14	2	13
August	12	4	24
September	12	15	34
October	13	6	127
November	12	2	10
December	13	2	10
January, 1881	23	3	162
Totals	1,229	124	1,394
Totals same months, 1880	859	33	629

The remarkable cold weather, and the great amount of ice and snow are the chief causes of the increased number of accidents and their fatality.

Senator Quarles, of Kenosha, made a strong speech in the Republican caucus when he presented the name of Mr. Williams for United States Senator. After speaking of the strides the monopolies were making against the rights of the people, he said:

"Mr. President, the gentleman whom I have the honor to present here, I can truthfully say, is on the side of the people. His voice has been heard by every gentleman under this roof. The eloquence of that voice has thrilled the heart of nearly every Republican in Wisconsin. And when we were in trouble, when defeat stared us in the face, when the party called upon him in its time of need, he responded and you heard from him on every stump of Wisconsin, last fall. In his behalf it might be said, Mr. President, that he has always stood at his post; that he has never cast a vote, which was against the interests of the people, and if transferred to the higher branch of the Legislature, I believe he would stay by the people."

The State of Maine which contributes the brain and genius of a Blaine to the cabinet of President Garfield, has contributed to the United States Senate during the past winter two young men of national fame and of remarkable force of character and of great ability. Eugene Hale, one of the brightest men of the East, a public speaker of rare power and wonderful resources, a son-in-law of the ever lamented Zach Chandler, a man of brains and a power in the party, was recently taken from the House of Representatives to occupy the seat of the venerable Hannibal Hamlin, whose term has just expired. Now that Blaine has gone into the cabinet of the new administration, another seat was vacant in the Senate, and without a question as to what course the Republican Legislature of Maine should take, they promptly and unanimously nominated William Pitt Frye. Like the brilliant Hale, he is in the very prime of strong manhood. He has a large brain, a great fund of practical ability, and as a public speaker and a sharp debater, he will have no superior in the Senate. It has been said, and the words have been truly spoken, that Mr. Hale and Mr. Frye are the most positive acquisitions the United States Senate has received for a long time. Either one of them is able to meet Senator Conkling in the conflict of debate without any fear of being worsted by the brilliant Senator from New York.

THE NOMINATION OF SENATOR CAMERON.

The successor of the late Senator Carpenter is Mr. Cameron, whose term of six years in the Senate expired on Friday last. This result of the Republican caucus was not unexpected. He started off with the highest number of votes of any candidate, and steadily maintained the leadership in the caucus until the opposition to him became virtually demoralized, and in the caucus last night, he received a majority of all the votes cast, when his nomination was made unanimous. The nomination of Senator Cameron will give general satisfaction among all fair-minded men throughout the State. The people have not forgotten his fidelity to duty, and faithfulness to Republican principles when he was first nominated for the Senate six years ago under the most trying and delicate circumstances. Twelve bolting Republicans and all the Democrats voted for him, and with his knowledge he was made United States Senator to succeed Mr. Carpenter in 1875. Under these circumstances it was supposed by those who did not intimately and thoroughly know the new Senator, that he would occupy an independent position in the Senate. There were many speculations as to what course he would take until he reached Washington, which was only a few days after his nomination.

The brilliant, witty, and jovial Matt Carpenter, whose memory every man in Wisconsin will honor, introduced Mr. Cameron to the Senators, very much in these words: "Here is my friend, Angus Cameron, who will take my seat. He is a true man every inch of him, and a better Republican than I ever was."

It did not take Mr. Cameron long to decide what was his duty. He entered the first Republican caucus and took a firm stand for Republican principles, and since that time no man in the Senate has been truer to the party and its policy than Mr. Cameron. He has not only been true to the Republican party, but he has made a good Senator. Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, says, that while Mr. Cameron may not have made any brilliant speeches on the floor of the Senate, he has made one of the very best working Senators, and has done a vast amount of labor on committees in the Senate and on the committees sent South to investigate violence and fraud. He is one of these true-hearted men, who can be trusted in every emergency. You know where to find him when you want him, and know that he will not misrepresent the best interests of the State nor the solid principles of the party.

Mr. Cameron has been pretty conspicuous in Wisconsin politics for some time, and no one ever heard of him being connected with any tricks of machine men or jobberies of professional politicians. He settled in La Crosse in 1857, coming from New York. He served in the State Senate in 1864, 1865, and in 1871 and 1872. He was in the Assembly in 1866 and 1867, and was speaker in the latter year. During these years the name of Angus Cameron was synonymous with honesty, and the confidence the people had in him at that time, has not been shaken by his service of six years in the United States Senate. He will return to the Senate with that experience and sturdy manhood that will be of great benefit to the State as well as to the party he so wisely represents, and over his good fortune, there will be general rejoicing in the State.

MISSED HER MAN.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 9.—Mrs. Mollie Mickelberry met George Arbuckle, a wealthy retired dry goods merchant, on the street this morning, and drawing a revolver, fired at him. The ball missed him and struck Mrs. Jane McMurry in the arm, inflicting a very painful flesh-wound. Arbuckle ran into a store and was pursued by Mrs. Mickelberry, but, before she could fire a second time, the proprietor took the revolver from her. Arbuckle had promised to marry her, and had been putting it off from time to time, and finally refused to marry at all. She is determined to have revenge. The affair has created a great sensation, as both parties are well known.

CAMERON ELECTED.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, March 10.—At noon both branches of the Wisconsin Legislature met in joint session to ballot for United States Senator, with the following result:—Angus Cameron, 97; Wm. F. Vilas, 27. Cameron was duly declared elected United States Senator for the four unexpired years of Matthew Hale Carpenter's term.

Senator Cameron will immediately leave for Washington. No business of public interest was transacted in either house to-day.

THE CAMERON VICTORY.

The End of the Senatorial Contest at Madison.—The Nomination of Angus Cameron—Details of the Closing Hours of the Fight.

MADISON, March 9.—After the 46th ballot had been taken, it was apparent there was no chance for Mr. Keyes or Mr. Dixon to be nominated for United States Senator, and their friends at once commenced seeking for a candidate who would be objectionable to all the opposition to Mr. Cameron. An agreement was at once made to enter into a caucus and try and settle on some one. At 2 o'clock fifty-two gentlemen met in the agricultural rooms and organized by the nomination of Mr. Rewey as chairman. A number of informal ballots were taken, when Messrs. Keyes and Dixon were withdrawn, and they united on the Hon. Jonathan Bowman, of Kilmour City, Mr. Bowman receiving 44 votes, the balance going to Mr. Hazelton and others. Senators Thomas and Blackstone finally withdrew, and after some discussion, it was voted—48 to 2—to go for Mr. Bowman. Assurances had been made that enough of the Cameron men would leave to insure the election of Mr. Bowman, an assurance that was not verified when the caucus got together, and the forty-seventh ballot was taken, which resulted: Cameron, 49; Bowman, 47; Fairchild, 2; Keyes, 1; Hazelton, 1.

The announcement by the Chair created intense excitement, which continued while the tellers were collecting the ballots for the forty-eighth ballot. Mr. McFetridge, one of the tellers, who was a Cameron man, jerked the tally-slip high above his head as he passed it to Mr. Rewey to hand it to the Secretary, and everybody was satisfied that Mr. Cameron had won the prize. Mr. Sprague, another teller, was not satisfied with the count, and Mr. Rewey took back the slip while Mr. Sprague again counted the ballots. While this proceeded the utmost quiet prevailed. It was like a smoldering volcano, and as Senator Scott announced the result of the forty-eighth ballot—Cameron 51, Bowman 49—an immense shout went up, which was instantly hushed by Senator Price, who, in sharp, quick tones, said, "Mr. President, I move we adjourn." The motion was put and partly announced as carried by the President, when a Cameron man said, "I move to make it unanimous." Senator Price said: "The motion to adjourn is not debatable." The feeling at the moment was intense, as his well known aversion to Mr. Cameron might cause him to make a motion which might seriously injure the Republican party. A motion for the yeas and nays was decided by the President. During the calling of the roll the excitement subsided, friends gathered around Senator Price, and he prevailed upon to make the nomination unanimous, which he did in a handsome manner. It was seconded by Senator Quarles, and carried unanimously amid deafening cheers. A motion was made and carried to appoint a committee to wait upon Senator Cameron at the Park hotel, and inform him of his nomination. The committee, consisting of Senator Field and Assemblymen Stanley and Luse, soon returned with Senator Cameron, who ascended the president's rostrum and spoke as follows:

"GENTLEMEN: I have just been informed that I have been nominated by your honorable body to be a Republican candidate for Senator to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of the great, gifted, and talented Senator, Matthew Hale Carpenter. I do not appear before you for the purpose of addressing you at length, but merely to signify my acceptance of the high honor conferred on me, and thank you for the same."

Mr. Cameron descended from the President's desk and was immediately surrounded by Senators and members, who heartily congratulated him upon his success. The opponents of Mr. Cameron acquiesced gracefully in his nomination, and no bolt has been or will be thought of, although the Democrats stand ready to enter any combination by which they could punish Mr. Cameron for remaining a stalwart Republican in the United States Senate after having been elected by their votes.

CONGRATULATIONS.

LA CROSSE, March 9.—The intelligence of Senator Angus Cameron's nomination for United States Senator, was received in La Crosse at 9 o'clock this evening with general jubilation. Rockets were fired from the vicinity of the postoffice and open house, which brought together a large crowd of delighted citizens of all parties. A rousing bonfire at the corner of Main and Fourth streets illuminated that part of the city, and speeches and cheers followed in quick succession. Citizens generally, irrespective of party, rejoiced over the triumph of their distinguished and respected townsman.

THE OFFICE-HUNTERS

Garfield Worn Out The Army of Office-Seekers at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.—The trains come more and more crowded with those who desire to offer their services to their country for a consideration. The White House mail daily grows in size. The indications are that, within a short time, there will be applicants here or applications on file for every office under the government, except President, the cabinet, the few for which nominations have been made and those with a life-tenure. The rush for place when Mr. Hayes came in was a quiet affair beside the lively promenade of the present. For three days President Garfield has been literally overwhelmed. It has actually been difficult either to stand against or in the crowd that have pressed around him in the White House. To relieve the great pressure he has worked each day, about seventeen hours.

To-day he evidently saw that trying to reduce this life mopping up the sea, and at 1 o'clock he went to lunch and then a nap, leaving word that he had gone to rest, and would see no one for the rest of the day. The fact is, the strain of the last ten days has been very great, and much rest is absolutely necessary. He evidently feels that the business of office-seeking is of the kind that will keep, and not of a character which, in the general interest of the public, requires speedy action. He is reported as disposed to move with deliberation in all cases, which he does not fully understand.

MRS. CROCKER.

MILWAUKEE, March 9.—The highly-sensational case of the State against Mrs. Frank Smith Crocker, charged with attempting to shoot her stepmother, Mrs. J. B. Smith, a lady of wealth and high social standing, was called in the Circuit Court to-day. The fact of the effort on the part of the prisoner to kill Mrs. Smith was established by Lieutenant Dow, of the police force, and James G. Flanders, attorney, in whose office the affair occurred. Colonel George W. Goodwin conducted the defense, and said he would plead both self-defense and insanity. He cited that the Smith family, before the demise of Mrs. Crocker's mother, was a happy one; that, soon after her death, the home was changed to one of misery by the marriage of Smith to the lady at whom the prisoner shot. This marriage followed an unnatural courtship, the attorney intimating that various arts were practiced upon Smith to lead him to the union. The prisoner had been driven from home and for years buffeted about, deprived of estate and means of support. He called to mind the suicide of a brother, and mentioned various circumstances to prove that insanity existed in the family. The trial will be concluded to-morrow. There is doubt as to the disposition the Court will make of the prisoner.

VENOR'S HOROSCOPE.

MONTREAL, March 5.—The spring will be fairly early, but dry, and the mid-summer cool and wet. The autumn promises to be open, dry, and fine. There is likely to be a great deal of sickness during the year, but the weather—except in a few isolated sections—will be favorable to agricultural pursuits. The winter of 1882 bids fair to be open and generally mild, with but few and those short-lived, storm periods.

HENRY G. VENOR.

THEIR SENIORS.

Distinguished Men Who Married Women Older Than Themselves.

From a New York Letter to the Cincinnati Gazette.

Speaking of oblivion, it is surprising how rapidly even the great fall out of notice. Carlyle and George Eliot were literary wonders, and they are already dropped from observation. The latter was buried at Highgate, which is already known as the resting place of Coleridge. The fact that her husband (John Walker Cross) was so much younger (twenty years) than herself occasioned much comment. This, however, is not without precedent in literary and social life. One of the leading clergy in this city is married to a woman ten years his senior, and the union seems congenial. Mohammed's wife was twenty years older than her husband, and it is much to the credit of the latter that he honored her to the last. He ascribed much of his success to her assistance and influence. John Howard, the philanthropist, married out of gratitude a woman equally his senior. She died in a few years, however, and his second union was one of love. It was, however, also dissolved by the death of his wife, and then he devoted himself to philanthropy. Napoleon's first wife, Josephine, was his senior by six years, being 30 at the time of their marriage, while he was 24. It would have been well for him had he valued her conjugal love, whose violation was the beginning of his ruin. Aaron Burr also married a widow, who, like Josephine, had two children. Mrs. Burr was ten years older than her husband, but the union was very harmonious. She probably allowed him that large liberty with the fair sex to which he had been accustomed, and thus avoided domestic quarrels. John Wilkes, the famous London agitator of the last century, married a lady who was ten years his senior, but she was not willing to overlook all his irregularities, and hence obtained a divorce.

Johnson, the lexicographer, married the Widow Porter, who had a small property. He was acquainted with the family before the death of her husband, and this helped in the matter of courtship. Mrs. Porter was 48, while her husband was only 21 at the time of the wedding. The parties started horseback for the place where the ceremony was to be performed, and Johnson thus describes the journey to Boswell: "Sir, she had got into her head from old romances that a woman of spirit should use her lover like a dog. At first she told me I rode too fast and she could not keep up with me, but when I slackened my pace she passed me and complained that I lagged. I was not to be made the slave of caprice, and therefore pushed on till I was out of sight. When she got to the destination I observed that she was in tears." Johnson always mourned the loss of his wife, and though he was only 43 at the time of her death he never married again. How often in the subsequent writings he refers to his lost companion in the most affectionate manner.

When only 18 Shakespeare was married to Anne Hathaway, whose age was 25. Six months from the wedding day the first son was born to this ill-matched pair. The husband and father had no means of supporting a family, and when the latter had increased to the number of a son and two daughters he fled to London. The deserted wife supported her children as best she could, and twenty years afterward her husband returned, and by his subsequent conduct strove to atone for his early error. Such facts as these prove that John Walter Cross, in marrying Marion Evans, had some striking precedents.

H. A. PATTERSON, P. M.
Matrimonial Agencies.
Under an assumed name my friend went to the Paris residence of M. de F., the celebrated marriage broker, and having paid the preliminary fee of £40, explained that he came on behalf of a cousin who, although possessed of a handsome fortune and good title, was anxious to increase his worldly goods by contracting a wealthy marriage. My friend further asserted that he acted in his own name and without the authority of his cousin, but that the consent of the latter, should anything acceptable be proposed, he could answer for M. de F. at first demurred, and asserted that he was not in the habit of dealing with less than at least one person directly interested in a matrimonial project; but my friend's eloquence, not to speak of the thousand-franc note, at length prevailed and the great matrimonial agent unbosomed himself.

His terms were eight per centum on the dot, and this to be paid within the first year after the celebration of the marriage. Of course my friend consented. Then M. de F. explained that, should the thing be definitely decided on, and the attempt fail, no further expenses would be incurred, the £40 covering all. This pleased my friend still more, for he confessed to me that he had feared he should not be allowed to leave the sanctum of the magician without parting with at least another fifty louis. These preliminaries having passed off to the satisfaction of both parties, M. de F. opened an immense desk and took out from it a bulky note-book, in which my friend solemnly alleged were inscribed the names, ages, fortune, disposition and social status of every heiress not only in France, but in Belgium, Austria, Holland, Italy, England and every other country in Europe. M. de F. airily explained that he despised American heiresses, as their fortunes could never be relied upon. M. de F. read out his list, somewhat as follows: "Four millions, orphan, red hair, two-and-twenty, subject to epilepsy, clever, but strong-minded; property all real estate, noble family, Belgian." "Five millions, widow, very susceptible, dark, may or may not have had lovers, but there is no scandal attaching to her name; French, good bourgeois family; very fond of titles, but prefers men in the army; will not marry a man under forty; is herself five-and-thirty; property partly in railway shares and partly in French government stock; is a good cook and a first hand believed that the list was purely an imaginary one and merely a bait thrown out to attract hungry fish. This doubt was, however, soon dispelled when he selected one out of the many heiresses offered to him, and when M. de F., looking upon the matter as settled, calmly stated the name of the young lady, my friend discovering to his astonishment that he knew the family intimately, and that M. de F. was his intelligence and details were absolutely correct in every particular.

He then explained his system. "Of course, Monsieur le Comte," he said, "it is needless to tell you that these ladies do not come to me themselves and seek for husbands. When a lady has a large fortune and is anxious to get married she has no need of a matrimonial agent. It is her friends, parents or guardians who come to me--in nine cases out of ten without her knowledge--and, possessing influence over her, they induce her to enter into consideration of a few arranged between us, of course provided I can, among my clients, find a suitable partner. The whole thing is perfectly simple, and the wife need never suspect anything. From the names I have just mentioned you can see for yourself that many of my clients, both male and female, belong to the best nobility of Europe, and in fact I think I can say without vanity that I have had something directly or indirectly to do with most of the leading matrimonial alliances which have taken place in France in the last thirty years, although since the fall of the second empire business has become rather slack."

comes off, Madame la Marquise, M. la Vicomte and the matrimonial agent all having a large plum out of the pie, the mother and daughter never suspecting anything. More than three-quarters of the marriages in France--and in the grand-motherly mind you are brought about in this way; for, apart from the professional matrimonial agents, most of the abbés and cures add to their income by mixing in matrimonial intrigues of this nature.

As a matter of fact, indeed, the priests are the most powerful of all matrimonial agents, for the family confessor exercises the greatest influence and is supposed to be above all suspicion. Who can wonder after this that so many marriages in France end in misery and separation, and that M. Naquet meets with support when advocating divorce? There is no remedy for this evil, for one cannot discover it, and in some instances both the bride and the bridegroom are alike ignorant that the fact of their standing before the altar is a matter of so many thousand francs in pocket to two or more of their most intimate and cherished friends! Let it not, moreover, be supposed that we in England are free from this scourge; quite the contrary--there is so much money made in Belgium as at Sainte Clothilde.--Whitehall Review.

The well-known sawdust swindle having been stopped so far as the mails and express companies are concerned, several of the bold operators have made successful personal tours in the Southwest. Professing to be a buyer of produce or stock, the swindler conducts the business in the ordinary fashion up to the point when the stuff is ready for shipment. Then the amount agreed on is counted out in good money. Picking up one of the bills, he says: "Oh, that's a counterfeit. Let me give you another." The farmer examines the note, and of course can find no difference between it and the others. A conversation on the subject ensues. The swindler confidentially confesses that he has a box full of the wonderful counterfeits, and finally offers, with seeming reluctance, to pay his indebtedness with them, giving ten dollars for one. His only proviso is that the box shall not be opened until after his departure with the produce, and then nothing but sawdust is found. The farmer usually keeps silence for the sake of his own reputation.

The latest novelty at the New York Aquarium is a hippopotamus, said to be the largest yet imported. It measures twelve feet from head to tail, and weighs a ton. Though larger have been seen in this country, they have always been very small when imported. This one differs from those usually seen at circuses in being somewhat lighter in color. It came from the upper Nile, and arrived at New York on the steamship Alexandria. Fifteen men were required in transporting the animal from the wharf to the aquarium. The cage was a curious oblong box of wood and thongs, made by the African natives.

The pupils had got as far as the word "hypocrite." None of the children could explain what it meant. One guessed that it meant "big feeling," and another thought a "hypocrite" was a "big animal that wallers in the mud." So the teacher explained: "A hypocrite, children, is a person who pretends to be what he is not; such a one may be pleasant to your face, but speaks ill behind your back." "Please, marm," cried a little boy eagerly, raising his hand, "then my pa ain't a hypocrite, 'cause he said you was a confounded old maid, and he'd just lives tell yer so to yer face!"--Boston Transcript.

HOME looks sort of tame to you now, but after you have sweltered in an attic up country or had your face skinned by the breezes and reflecting sun of the seashore, and after you have chewed green cucumbers in the one place and sole leather clams in the other, you will long for one day at home, where you can sleep with plenty of fresh air from the window, eat reliable, nourishing food, sit with your feet on the mantelpiece and be social. Any other place is a fool to home.--New Haven Register.

The new wife of the Czar is a young sister of the wife of General Albedynski, Governor of Warsaw. The Emperor Peter II., who was then only fifteen years old, was betrothed to a Princess Dolgorouki. He died a few months later, and the Princess was then banished to Siberia; she was, however, afterwards pardoned. The Dolgoroukis are a very numerous, and it may be added, a very ancient family, since they trace their descent from the Archangel Michael.

The silver mouse has superseded the growing golden pig in popularity as a jeweled article of personal adornment. Thus one by one in emblematic forms are the original and antiquated occupants of Noah's ark pressed into modern fashionable service.

DR. PRICE'S REPUTATION!
Has been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice. My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, makes sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call and investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for yourself; it will cost nothing, consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

BRIEFLETS.

—Look out for cellars.

—Everybody will be in a boat if the snow all melts at once.

—Janesville Glee Club concert, Monday evening, March 14th.

—The piles at the head of the race have all been driven now.

—Miss Emma Eaton, of the Second ward, is quite sick with lung fever.

—Florence Herbert and her company have engaged the Opera house for a week, commencing June 13.

—Anthony & Ellis' Uncle Tom's Cabin, which was to have been here to-morrow, has changed its date until the 15th.

—The celebrated Troubadours are to be in Janesville again, May 4th being the date fixed upon. One night only.

—Bishop Welles is expected to visit Christ Episcopal church next Sunday morning and Trinity church in the evening.

—Many citizens are paying commendable heed to the Mayor's proclamation to clear out the gutters. Others should do likewise.

—Postmaster Patterson is suffering from his old nervous troubles again, and though able to be out, can attend to but little business.

—Mrs. Miles Doran, of the Second ward, was somewhat badly bitten by a dog last Tuesday, and is laid up, but only for the time being.

—Rev. F. L. Chapel started to-day for a few weeks absence in the east. His pulpit will be supplied while he is gone by Rev. L. M. Dunn, of Milton.

—Mrs. John Breene, while at work about her home, about two miles east of Beloit, last Tuesday, dropped down and died instantly of heart disease.

—The Northwestern company estimates that the blockade has cost it $300,000 cash, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul places its loss at a like sum.

—The programme for the Glee Club concert is all completed, and will be announced in this paper Monday evening. Everything entirely new and first class.

—The Milwaukee & St. Paul has its trains running as usual to-day, except the Beloit train, and that branch will be open by night, as will also the Western Union division.

—Dance in Apollo hall, next Monday evening, immediately after the concert. Tickets to concert 25 cents, dance, 50 cents. Tickets now for sale by all members of the Club.

—The Chicago & Northwestern road is reported to-day as open, and all trains supposed to be running on time, and all affairs fast getting into their regular and monotonous channels of every day life.

—A delayed postal, dated February 25, reached here yesterday from Brocton, Chautauque county, New York, stating that Mrs. S. T. Griswold had arrived safely there, and would remain for a short time with friends.

—Fred. Holden, having been liberated on his own recognizance, has been offered a clerical position in the jail at Chicago where he has been so long housed, and has accepted the same. Some of his old Janesville friends have tried to get him to return here, and he may do so after a time, but in any event he purposes now to lead a life of sobriety and industry. He says he has had enough of the ways of the world, and we should think he had.

—To-day the Daily Gazette enters upon its twenty-fifth year, and starts out from the milestone with a due sense of gratitude for those who watched over it and cared for it during its tender years; to those who have helped it in its growth into manhood, and by no means forgetting the many friends who now rally around it, to one and all it promises to be stronger and brighter during its coming year, and to keep ever moving onward to better things.

—A postal card from J. W. McIntyre, manager of the city hospital in St. Louis, has been received stating that Thomas Sargent, late night clerk in the Industrial Friendly Inn, in that city, died at the hospital Feb. 27, and that he desires the friends here to be notified, so that if his body is wanted it can be taken up and sent here. As no one seems to know who Thomas Sargent is, we give this public notice of the matter, that it may catch the eyes of friends, if any such there be.

—All will be interested in learning what Vennor, the "old probabilities" of Canada has to say about what the weather will be in March. In a letter dated Feb. 14, he says concerning the weather in the United States. "March will enter like a lion nearly everywhere. The 3d or 4th of the month will, in all probability, bring a 'cold dip,' and stormy weather, with snow storms over very considerable areas. Heavy winds and rains about the 9th or 10th, and a second cold snap, with wretched weather, about the 16th or 17th."

—The Chicago Times' Washington correspondent lately devoted a goodly space to the write-up of a young man named Turk, of Milwaukee, who is also pretty well known here, having been here more or less conspicuous in social circles. It seems that he was staying in Washington and trying to get the government interested in some new kind of ink, and was improving his stay there by worming his way into Washington society. He attended, uninvited, and in company with a friend, also uninvited, a reception at Sir Edward Thornton's. Miss Thornton recognized Turk as a young man who had shown much boldness in trying to get acquainted with her, and knowing that he was an uninvited guest, informed her father, who proceeded summarily to order young Turk and his friend out of the house. The young man's acquaintances here will appreciate this little social event, as they are conversant with his peculiarities, and his overfondness for making a society dash.

WHISKY IN EDGERTON.

The anti-license party, being in power in Edgerton, has been insisting on having the law obeyed, and that whisky-selling should cease. They say that when there were licenses granted, they submitted to the law, and did not interfere with the sale of that which cheers but also inebriates; and now that the tables are turned, they think it no more than fair that those who have been selling should obey the law with equal willingness and cheerfulness.

On the other hand the license party claim it is a persecution, and that they cannot make their hotel property pay at all unless they can sell liquor; that the temperance folk do not patronize hotels, and that if they must stop selling, they will stop keeping hotel. They claim they have property interests in Edgerton, and that the anti-license law is hurting it.

The temperance folk lately sent to the citizens' league in Chicago, for some man to serve as detective, and find out who was selling in spite of the law. Accordingly a man was sent there, named Albenson, who claims to be the publisher of a Swedish newspaper there. He is a cool, deliberate, professional looking sort of a genius, with a flush on his face indicative of good living, and with an eye which has been looking through the gold-bowed spectacles which sit so solidly upon his Roman nose. It was this gentleman, who for a consideration of $3 a day and expenses, undertook the task. He went to Edgerton, stopped at the hotels, drank with those that drank, and bought pint bottles of whisky, and labeled each with the place and date of purchase, and having got his evidence thus collected in his grip-sack disappeared, and now the suits begin, there being eleven for a starter.

The first one was against William Clatworthy, and was tried before Justice Brooks yesterday. The gentleman with the gold-bowed spectacles went up on the stand, told his story, the sample bottle was put in evidence, and all the day was spent in trying the issue. By 6 o'clock the case was submitted, and Justice Brooks found the defendant guilty, and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, the latter being $18.90, and in case of failure to pay the limit of imprisonment to be forty days.

This morning, as there were eleven or more cases to be tried, in which different parties were defendants, a consultation was had and an understanding reached between the free-license and no-license parties. In accordance with this understanding Clatworthy pleaded guilty to one more case, in which he was fined $20, and the costs amounting to $3.34. This, together with his other case, made his bill foot up $23.24.

Leonard Brimmer, who had several cases against him, pleaded guilty to two, and was fined $20 and costs in each, making the bill, including costs, $33.61. H. H. Dickinson, hotel keeper, also pleaded guilty in two cases, and having been convicted before, was fined $25 each and costs, making his bill $63.61. These several fines were paid.

Julius Torgerson pleaded guilty to two cases and was fined together with costs $38.72, making the total fines and costs in all the cases $208.18.

Premature Loss of the Hair.

newdays may be entirely prevented by the use of BURNETT'S COCAINE. It has been used in thousands of cases where the hair was coming out in handfuls, and has never failed to arrest its decay; it promotes a healthy and vigorous growth, and it is at the same time unexcelled as a soft and glossy dressing for the hair.

BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS are the best, strongest and most healthful. Sold everywhere.

A HEAVY MAIL.

Yesterday afternoon will be remembered long by those connected with the postoffice here, as it was the busiest time in the history of that institution, the mail received being the heaviest which ever came to this office. It took four solid hours of the liveliest sort of work to distribute it. Fred Dickerman, an old employee, being pressed into service in addition to the regular force. There were letters as far back as February 28, which had been delayed by the storms, and it seems as if no end would come to the mail matter. While all inside were on the jump there was an anxious, impatient throng on the outside, chatting and grumbling, and making occasionally such irritating remarks as "wonder whether they have gone asleep in there," "what in the world make them so slow," and the clerks hearing these trying words would drop an ejaculation of disgust at the stupidity of the outsiders, and honors thus being easy, would jump at the work again. It was a trying afternoon, and when the windows were at last open, there was a rush, which gave an excellent chance to test the law of the survival of the fittest. It kept up for an hour. Besides this there were whole bundles of registered letters, and money order advices, the opening of which had to be postponed to a more convenient season. Altogether it was the grandest opening of the season, and may be set down as "the read letter day" of Janesville, and to-day business men will find much of their time employed in answering and filing the epistolary documents which crowded their boxes to the full yesterday.

There were received yesterday at the office here 25 lock pouches of letters and 18 of papers and packages, making 43 in all.

The force worked until 1 o'clock this morning and got the daily papers distributed, but there is a mass of other papers to work on to-day, and with the other work, it has kept all hands as busy as could be.

MEAT FATHERS AND SELLERS.

Beloit butchers having joined in advancing the price of meats, there has been a howl started among the meat eaters, and a discussion awakened as to the profits of the business. One citizen presents figures showing that on one steer the butcher makes $31.83, and that one meat firm last summer averaged fifty heads per month, making his profits monthly over $1,500. Now comes one on the meat-market side and says these figures are farcical, and that at the rate of fifty heads a month the six firms in Beloit would have to sell an average of one whole beef a month to each family. One butcher gives the following showing of the prices at which steaks have been sold in Beloit for a course of years:

The Melancholy Dane.

Hamlet Prince of Denmark, would not have been dubbed the "Melancholy Dane" if he had known Dyspepsia was all that ailed him, and that all he needed was a supply of Spring Blossom, a sure cure for Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Indigestion and other diseases of that description. Prices: $1.50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. J. Roberts, and Craft & Sherr.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last night stood at 36 degrees above; at 1 o'clock A. M. at 20 degrees above; at 7 o'clock A. M. at 20 degrees above; and at 1 o'clock P. M. at 36 degrees above. Cloudy.

The indications to-day are, fair weather, northerly, possibly veering to easterly winds, stationary or higher temperature and lower barometer in western part of the upper lake region.

A GROWING FACTORY.

An important change is being made in Bailey & Ray's cotton batting factory, by which the business will be extended and a much larger number of hands employed. The firm have bought of the Ford estate a lot and large barn at the head of the race, and will fit the barn up as a twine factory, moving into it the machinery already employed for that purpose. They will also add a number of looms which they will set at work making toweling, which is an entirely new branch of the business. The cotton batting business will continue as before. The change is another indication that manufacturing enterprises in Janesville, when wisely handled, grow and prosper. May there be more of them.

MRS. JOHN YOUNG, NO. 3.

More About the Rebellious Wife of the Mormon Leader.

Philadelphia Press.

About the latter part of 1866, John H. Young was in the city, ostensibly on business for the Mormon community, but in reality with an eye to private speculation. Being a man of genial and entertaining presence, and not at all bad looking, and, besides, having made a number of strong friends who were willing to show him every possible courtesy during his stay in the Quaker City, he readily obtained an introduction to Miss Canfield, a daughter of Mr. Canfield of the Canfield Manufacturing Company, at that time doing business at Seventh and Cherry streets. Young had previously met the young lady and was somewhat smitten with her acknowledged beauty and charming manner, and upon being presented to her, immediately began the siege, which finally culminated in Miss Canfield's capitulation. They were married in 1877, notwithstanding the fact that at the time the young lady had a husband living in this city from whom she had never been divorced, and Young was in a similar plight, or worse, for he had two wives awaiting his return to his harem in Utah. The marriage between Young and Miss Canfield, however, was the result of pure love (sic), for it is said that he exhibited toward her more affection and tenderness than he did to any one or all of his other wives combined. It is further stated that when Young was wedded to his Philadelphia bride she was fully aware that he was doubly encumbered, but she overlooked this trifling matter when her husband explained that the other two were merely nominal wives, forced upon him by the laws of the Mormon church at the dictation of the Prophet, Brigham, &c. However that may be, Young and his Philadelphia bride went to Salt Lake City, and there led a life of domestic bliss which brought forth fruit in the form of three children. Nothing occurred to mar their uniform felicity until 1878, when Young suddenly took unto himself a fourth wife in the person of Lucella Cobb, which caused an unlooked for disruption in the previously well-regulated household. Prayers and entreaties proved of no avail. Mrs. Young, of Philadelphia, who had always been the recognized favorite, would submit to no such usurpation of her rights, and accordingly packed her trunks, and, taking the three children with her, left the city of many wives and returned to Philadelphia. Young has given bonds for his appearance in the sum of $2,000, but the telegraphic statement as to his having broken a pledge never to practice polygamy is laughed at by Philadelphians fully conversant with all the facts connected with his marriage in this city.
